

Psalm 22: 23-31

To the chief musician, set to the deer of the Dawn, a psalm of David

23. All you who fear the LORD, praise him. All seed of Ja - cob, ho - nor him.
25. In the great gath - er - ing my praise shall be from you. I'll pay my vows
27. All ends of earth, re - mem - ber - ing, shall turn them - selves un - to the LORD,
29. Al - so the pros - per - ous and great who are on earth shall eat, and they
30. A seed will serve him. Then it will be told a - bout the Lord un - to Fear him, all seed of Is - ra - el, 24. The trou - ble of the poor he's not be - fore ~ those who fear ~ him. 26. The poor shall eat and shall be filled.

and all the na - tions' fam - i - lies shall wor - ship you be - fore your throne, shall of - fer wor - ship un - to him. All those who go down to the dust a gen - er - a - tion af - ter them. 31. And they will come, and will de - clare de - spised, nor hid his face from him, but when he cried to him he heard.

Those who seek him will praise the LORD. May your heart live for - ev - er - more.
28. be - cause the king - dom is the LORD's, and he 0 - ver the na - tions rules.
shall pros - trate them - selves be - fore him. His soul shall not re - main a - live.
his right - eous - ness to peo - ple who must still be born, that he did this.
