

Psalm 65

To the chief musician
A psalm of David, a song

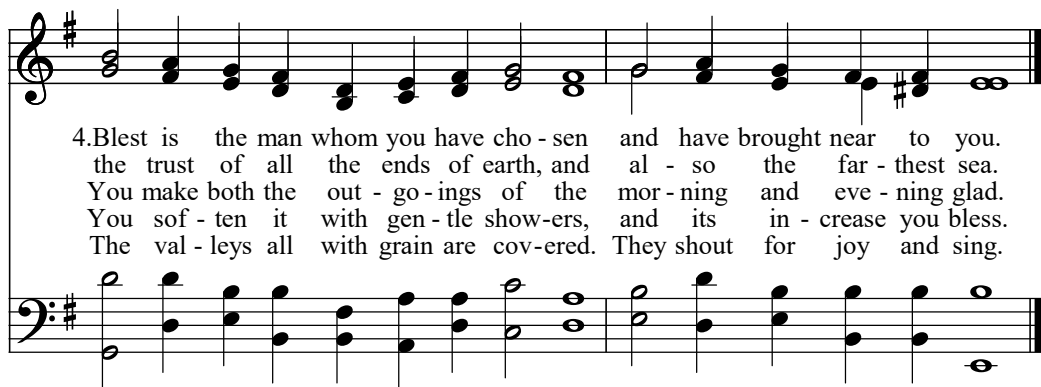

1. Praise waits for you, O God, in Zi - on. To you shall vows be paid.
With - in your courts shall be his dwel - ling. We shall be sat - is - fied
6. He by his strength set fast the moun - tains, be - ing gir - ded with might.
9. You vis - it earth and give it wa - ter. You great - ly en - rich it.
11. You crown the year with your great good - ness, and your paths drip with fat.

2. O you who an - swer sup - pli - ca - tion, to you all flesh shall come.
with the a - bun - dance of your tem - ple and of your ho - ly house.
7. He stills the roar - ing seas, their bil - lows, the peo - ples' tur - bu - lence.
The stream of God is full of wa - ter. You will pro - vide their grain.
12. The pas - tures of the wil - der - ness are to o - ver - flow - ing full.

3. In - i - qui - ties pre - vail a - gainst me. Our sins you will a - tone.
5. In deeds of right - eous - ness you an - swer, O our sal - va - tion's God,
8. They al - so that are dwel - ling far off of your signs are a - fraid.
10. A - bun - dant - ly you soak the fur - rows. You smooth the rid - ges down.
The lit - tle hills are clothed with glad - ness. 13. The fields are clothed with flocks.

4. Blest is the man whom you have cho - sen and have brought near to you.
the trust of all the ends of earth, and al - so the far - thest sea.
You make both the out - go - ings of the mor - ning and eve - ning glad.
You sof - ten it with gen - tle show - ers, and its in - crease you bless.
The val - leys all with grain are cov - ered. They shout for joy and sing.
